Toney Penna Talks Golf

Swing weight measures a golf club's balance. It tells how much of a club's weight lies on either side of a fixed point on the shaft a specific distance from the grip end of a golf club. It's determined by using a specially designed scale.

Almost every component of a golf club affects swing weight. One of the most important items in selecting your correct swing weight is shaft flex.

Generally, the stronger and faster you swing, the stiffer shaft and higher swing weight you'll need. For example, the not-too-strong hitter may require a flexible shaft with D-O swing weight to get the ball in the air, while a powerful player can get loft with extra stiff shafts and D-5 or even higher swing weight. Most men would use a D-2 or a D-3, which are in the middle of the scale.

Taking this into consideration, along with your height, arm length and the size grips you need, your pro can prescribe the right swing weight for you.

Mr. Penna, a former leading tour and golf pro, is the designer of the widely imitated MT irons and head of the Toney Penna Company, custom golf equipment manufacturing division of A-T-O Inc.

The Raiderettes continued to dominate Gretna in the doubles play with the following results: Harris and Hipps 8-6, Robinson and McFaden 8-4, Smith and Lettner 8-5.

On Friday, March 30, Appomattox hosted Lynchburg Christian Academy in their first home match. The Raiderettes upset LCA 9-0 in this non-conference match. June Harris and Terri Robinson were both 8-1. Pam Guill's made an excellent come back after being down 4-7 to win at 9-7. Susan Smith defeated her opponent 8-6. Dana Ford and Linda Cowan each defeated their opponent 6-3. Appomattox made a clean sweep in doubles play with the following results: Hipps and Harris 6-0, Robinson and McFaden 6-3, and Smith and Letner 6-0.

Mitchell Team Wins At FRCC

The season officially opened Sunday at F.R.C.C. for the 72 golfers who participated in the Captain's Choice Tournament.

However, it looked like mid-season for the team of Doug Mitchell, Jimmy Mayberry, Donald Ferguson and Jerry Foltz who posted a thirteen under par 131 for the two day, thirty six hole event. That was three strokes better than the team of Tom Bass, Sam Carter, Jim Dorety and Bob Lawson who finished second at 134. Bass's team led the field after Saturday's play with 66 but climbed to a 68 Sunday and fell off the pace set by the Mitchell team.

Three tied at 135 and the third, fourth and fifth place teams were determined by matching cards, beginning with the eighteenth hole of Sunday's play and working backward.

Dan Herncall, Wayne Lee, Dennis Jamerson and Bob Hubbard claimed third with a birdie on eighteen. Ronnie Robinson, Robert Hamlett, O. H. Tolley, Jr. and Freddie Moore took fourth with a birdie at sixteen and Ronnie Ranson, Floyd Fleshman, Tommy Lawson and Scott Witmer were fifth.

Mitchell's team posted the lowest 18 hole score (64) and tied with Herncall's team for the lowest 9 hole score (31). Sixteen teams were under par for the tournament.

Facts Sheet On Gasohol

Gasohol is a mixture of gasoline and industrial alcohol (ethanol). The following points apply to Gasohol mixed at a ratio of 90% unleaded gasoline to 10% ethanol.

Fuel Efficiency

Tests, including a two million mile road test in Nebraska, show that Gasohol produces as much as 5.3% greater mileage per gallon. Combined with the 10% savings resulting from adding ethanol to gasoline, the increased mileage of Gasohol amounts to a 15% savings of gasoline.

Environment

Tests have established that Gasohol emits fewer pollutants than plain unleaded gasoline.

Automobile Efficiency

Tests have established that a 90/10 mixture of Gasohol will not harm the automobile engine. It can be directly substituted for gasoline without any engine modifications. Proponents add that it provides for easier starting in adverse weather conditions.

Production

Production of ethanol is a proven technology. Critics argue that more energy is used in the production of ethanol than would be saved by using Gasohol; proponents cite a study which disagrees with the conclusion.

Economy

Because of the cost of producing ethanol, Gasohol now costs more than gasoline. Proponents of Gasohol point out that rising petroleum prices will make Gasohol more competitive. A three-cent reduction in Federal tax on each gallon of Gasohol, combined with the economic advantages of increased mileage,has made Gasohol competitive in several markets, including Northern Virginia.

Economic Impact on Virginia

Increased production of ethanol would provide a market for Virginia's surplus grains, such as corn and barley. Deteriorated grain and grain which does not meet export standards can also be used to produce ethanol. The corn-mash by-product of ethanol is now an important source of cattle feed. Virginia coal could be used as an energy source for the production of ethanol.

Two Appomattox Men In Dragway Race

WAYNESBORO - It took him awhile, but the weatherman finally won out here Sunday afternoon in the second day's action of the Spring Cash Bash at Eastside Dragway.

Saturday night's action was delayed by two and a half hours, but when the competition did not underway the rain hadn't done as much damage as expected.

Doug Bays of Bedford, last year's track champ and a favorite in the grandstand, went home $500 richer after putting down Jim Horne of New Castle in the Super Pro finals on the quarter-mile strip.

Bays had gotten a bye in the break rule in quarter finals when Bill Agee of Bedford was forced from competition. Horn's Duster ran a Bye in the quarters and Jim Ayers' Moonshine Runner Camaro from Scottsville beat J. B. Coffey of Waynesboro in the Lawman Camaro. Clyde Harvey of Appomattox was the other quarter finalists.

Up for the semis, Bays put down Ayers, the Duster again drew a bye and it was time for the money run. Bays went through the bottom with an 11.54; Horn turned a 12.95 and went home with $200 runner up money.

Dave Brooks of Staunton, driving the Flying Machine Vega, went to the line with Clyde Moyer of Lexington in the pro finals. Brooks ran the quarter in 14.26 seconds; Moyer ran 13.49. In the semi finals, John Roach of Appomattox, in the little green Snoopy Camaro, lost to Moyer and the Shenandoah Shaker Ford, driven by Robert Bernhart, was eliminated by Brooks. Pro quarter finalists were Gary Stinson of Virginia, Greg Sheffield of Staunton and Leonard Pennington of Lexington.

The heavy/street combo winner was Philip Ashwell of Rustburg running a 15.91 against Henry Walton, who turned 15.29. Semi finalists were H. G. Campbell of Staunton, Gary Helmick of Elkton, Boodie Stickley of Weyers Cave, Stanley Earley of Standardsville and Ken Ludwig of Mt. Jackson.

The second day competition, with the same purse that was to be offered this week, will be held next Sunday at 2:30. Then coming up on Easter Sunday the funny cars come to town for their annual show on the quarter mile strip.

Decorating Tips

Track lighting can be right on track when you want to light up a room. Once you install a track on the ceiling, you can insert as many lights as you wish and use them for a number of decor-enhancing purposes: general lighting, lighting a particular work area, accent lighting (for favorite furniture or a picture) and mood lighting.

* * *

Plan accessories for impact. Don't use any objects on tables just because someone gave them to you unless they fit in with your overall decorating scheme: a color that matches those in your fabrics, floor or wall coverings, or a texture that provides just the right contrast.
